

Surfing

Fred Hemmings Jr., current holder of the World Surfing Championship title has been surfing in Arizona these past few weeks. Not only in Arizona, but in the driest part, near Phoenix. Fred has been acting as a consultant to the Clairol Company who have been designing and building a surf machine in the desert in hopes of bringing the fun of surfing to those not so lucky as to live in Hawaii. Fred says the machine will put out three foot surf. Also working on the surf machine with Fred, is Butch Ledford. Both Fred and Butch are attending the opening of the surf machine the weekend of September 7th. They will both return shortly to train for the Molokai Race in more familiar surroundings.

RESULTS OF THE OUTRIGGER SURF MEET

The meet was held Saturday, August 23. It had been postponed from an earlier date because of poor surf. On the 23rd however, the surf was ideal with consistent 6 to 8 foot sets at "Old Man's" in front of the club. It was a good contest for all those who entered.
