

WIND AND WAVE

HAVE CHANGED BEACH

---

The continuous shifting of the wind in the past few weeks has wrought many changes in the contour of Waikiki beach, particularly in front of the Seaside and Moana hotels. First of all the great sand bank just between the two hotels which keeps the stream water backed up much of the time has been washed away and the gap greatly broadened up to the lawns of the Moana and Outrigger club. The sand bar which used to be directly in front of this gap has shifted seaward and is now in front of the Seaside.

The high bank of sand fronting the entire Moana property has been gutted out and has almost undermined the row of hau trees which were being worked into an arbor. The roots on the sea side are all exposed and the sand is gradually crumbling away. There is a sheer drop directly in front of the benches of three feet. The cement pillars under the end of the dining-room have been exposed to the foundations.
