Outrigger Club Is Flourishing

Things at the Outrigger Club are going along with a swing that makes people imagine that Alexander Hume Ford must be hiding behind a surf board somewhere on the beach.

The club, which was first thought of by the much traveled Ford, is in a flourishing condition, and every afternoon a big bunch of swimmers and canoe and surf board riders is in evidence.

The Woman's auxiliary is also doing well, and quite a number of the fair sex are becoming experts at the game. Dressing rooms for the ladies are fitted up and a caretaker is always present to provide hot water from a large kettle, which is kept on the boil in anticipation of a call for afternoon tea.

Numbers of small children go out every afternoon and a chaperon is on hand to watch out for the welfare of the young ones.
