

KAMEHAMEHAS ARE READY FOR SUNDAY

The men and women of the Kamehameha Aquatic Club will sail from Kalihi to the Outrigger grounds tomorrow, to have their canoes in readiness for the Clark cruisers. Sunday afternoon an imu will be built by the Hawaiian visitors, and the cruisers will be shown how poi is made from the start to the finish. Some of the taro with the tops on will be seen sprouting in the lagoon, three sets of poi pounders will be kept busy and even the women will help at the baking.

The cruisers will be offered some of the finished product, but it is doubtful if they will enjoy the national dish as much as will the Hawaiians, who will demonstrate the best ways of getting rid of one, two and three-finger poi.

Every youngster who thinks he has Kahuna blood in his veins is busy nowadays building mounds of sand on the beach and invoking—Hawaiian style—the deities of the deep, that the surf may run high on Sunday and everyone enabled to show off to his best ability in the waves.
