

from 4 to 6. The drawing room was festooned with malle, the decorations being caught from the center, and drawn to the four corners in a drape effect, caught here and there with California poppies. Vases filled with poppies were placed on small tables. Mrs. James Saunders of San Francisco, poured coffee. Mrs. Saunders looked stunning in an imported lingerie gown, inset with quantities of baby Irish lace made in train and cut in the latest mode. Mrs. James Hough was clad in an apricot satin, tunic effect, with embellishments of real lace. Miss Helen Hough looked girlish and sweet in a white lingerie over pink. The punch table was presided over by Miss Katherine Stephens, who looked extremely pretty in white, a large picture hat completed the costume. A Hawaiian string orchestra furnished music for the afternoon, on this occasion many beautiful costumes were observed, about fifty guests were present.

On Wednesday Mrs. Harry Gray was the hostess at a charming luncheon in honor of Miss McLain, whose engagement to Mr. Hserman of Hilo was lately announced. There were about twenty of Miss McLain's intimate friends present. The decorations were unusually tasteful and pretty, the dining room being a perfect bower of trailing vines, ferns and pink carnations. Over the large table hung a solid heart of pink carnations, from which were festooned pale pink ribbons strung with paper hearts. The borders of the tablecloths were also decorated with pink hearts and maidenhair. The centerpieces were masses of pink begonias in which reposed dainty favors for each guest. These were tiny pink shppers of crepe paper ornamented with frills of pink and gilt buckles. The heels were also gilded, and the slippers sprinkled with rice. After the delicious luncheon the guest of honor was treated to a complete surprise in the form of a kitchen "shower." She was led into an adjoining room, where the center table held a huge pink bell, cleverly constructed of crepe paper. This she was requested to "pull," and in so doing disclosed the many packages prepared by her friends. Every known article of kitchenware seemed to be there, each accompanied by a suitable verse, the reading of which created much merriment. The pleasure of the occasion was added to by songs by Mrs. O'Day, whose rich voice is always so appreciated and also by the clever piano playing of Miss Schuman.
