

The ladies of the Outrigger Club are turning out royally to help the men make the big carnival of Kamehameha eve a big success. The committees are being made up, and early during the week will be in full swing. Mrs. Carl Du Roi and Mrs. J. R. Galt will take charge of the ice cream booth; Mrs. G. H. Tuttle and Miss Newcomb will dispense the tea and coffee, with a bevy of fair assistants; Mrs. Raymond Brown will, with her aids, preside over the candy booth, and Mrs. Charles Chillingworth and Mrs. Fred Carter are gathering young ladies for the flower booth. Mrs. J. H. Soper, Mrs. Hobdy, Mrs. L. L. McCandless, Mrs. Eben Low, Mrs. A. Gartley and a host of the officers and big workers in the auxiliary are lending their aid in the work of promotion, and the affair of the tenth of June promises to be a grand success. There will be a regatta and surfing contest for the Clark cups in the afternoon, chowder from five to eight, a carnival of illuminated canoes between eight and nine, searchlight surfboarding in the surf and dancing at both hotels and in the lagoon lanai of the Outrigger Club ashore, while the McRaes and their friends will assist in a vaudeville performance—between dances—on a big stage built especially for them, with scenery from the operahouse.
