

BIG CROWD ATTENDS AT OUTRIGGER CLUB

GIRL AND MAN CAME IN STAND-ING ON ONE BOARD—SOME GREAT SPORT.

Yesterday saw the biggest crowd at Waikiki that that resort has known for a year. For three days the surf has been running high, even such experts as Dad Center have taken headers that have delighted the watching crowds on the Seaside grounds. In the small surf yesterday there were hundreds of surfers of all ages, all with boards.

The sorority girls were there, and some of them now stand on their boards. The marvel is that with twenty or thirty attempting to catch the same wave that no one is ever injured, which only goes to show that surfing is the safest sport in the world.

Marston Campbell (the little chap, not his papa) was out on his board, tied to a launch and actually stood on his board going against the waves, the launch drawing him.

Miss Josephine Pratt came into the beach on a big wave with one of the gentlemen Outrigger members standing on the front of her board, he got thrown from his and lighted feet down on hers, and so they came in together.

There were all kinds of mix-ups every few moments. Elmer Evans and his crew of juniors attempted to cut through the surfing grounds in one of the big Wall canoes; they were practising to beat some other crew, or any other crew, but there were so many additions to the regular crew that he didn't try it again. Elmer came in without a single accident of any kind and was the proudest youngster on the beach.

The beach has come back in front of the Outrigger club, and is forming before the Seaside hotel, so that now there is room for hundreds to witness the surfing sports, and the temptation to revive the Waikiki racing and surfing stunts is on the Outrigger boys, and it looks as though there will be something doing in the waves this summer.
