

MANY YOUNGSTERS LEARNING TO SURF

Senior Members of Outrigger
Club Teach Youths
the Art.

Every surfboard at the Outrigger Club is in use nowadays, and every day new chums master the art of surfing. Yesterday, Henry Cooke, Douglas Cooke and Sherman Bodefeld, among the youngest of the Juniors, learned to stand on their boards after a few lessons from their elders.

It is quite the thing now for the older surfers to take the youngsters in hand and initiate them into the few simple secrets of the surfboards, so that some of the "Kids" learn in a few moments the art of standing, that a few years ago, took weeks of experimenting before the secret was discovered by those who were determined to learn to surf.

Both the Hui Nalu and the Outrigger crews are out practising every afternoon, and each crew is betting on its club to win on Regatta Day.
