

HUI NALUS

WORKING HARD

The Hui Nalu crew is doing some strenuous work of late in the big Prince Kuhio canoe. The crew did its hardest work on Sunday, starting from the Moana pier, going out to deep water for a mile, then turning Waikiki to Castle's place. On arrival off Castle's the crew took a short rest, then started down in blue water till off Brown's channel, coming through and back to the Moana, making fast time all the way. Duke Kahanamoku stated that it was their hardest work so far.

The members of the Hui Nalus are not taking things easy, as they know they have a strong rival in the Out-rigger crew, to say nothing about the Myrtle bunch or the Kams. The six-paddle crew is composed of Genoves, stroke; W. Cottrell, Dan Keawemahl, Jack Lishman, Duke Kahanamoku and Dude Miller.

The four-paddle crew will be composed mostly of men from the six-paddle event, among them Kahana-moku, the champion swimmer. Lukela Kaupiko will also paddle in this event.

Both crews are out every evening and go over a course towards the sea, going out over the breakers sometimes. The Hui Nalus will train in the harbor Friday afternoon.

The club is getting along well, and a few more new members will be taken in tonight.
