

WOMEN TO THE RESCUE

Hawaii's wartime food conserving commission will not lack for practical domestic advice or assistance, for the ladies (God bless 'em) are coming to the fore in force and with enthusiasm. Here is a portion of the great feminine parade, in line for food preparedness and pantry preservation: The Outdoor Circle, the College Club, Free Kindergarten and Children's Aid Association, Woman's Section of the Navy League, Young Women's Christian Association, Humane Society, Mothers' Club, Junior Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Guild, Woman's Auxiliary Outrigger Canoe Club, Daughters of the American Revolution, Catholic Ladies' Aid Society, Child's Welfare, Punahou Mothers' Association, Hawaiian Allied War Relief Committee, Woman's Guild of St. Andrews, and then some.

Every housewife, every prospective housewife, and every woman officiating in the home culinary department, will, I take it, constitute herself a committee of one to see that economy is practised, and, for the most part, economy without privation. Potatoes will be boiled "with their jackets on;" the loaf of bread will be brought to the table (and the King of England sets the example) instead of being cut in the kitchen; every meat meal will be followed by a hash meal, and we will eat our asparagus whole instead of just nibbling the tips.

The food commission will, indeed, have a wealth of advice from which rich results will inevitably be drawn.
