In deciding to make public through the press the names of the men selected by the nominating committee the officers of the Outrigger Club appear to have taken a step that is unique in club management, and packed full of plain common sense. The nominating committee, made up as it is of prominent men of the city has picked good men for the different places, and no matter who is chosen at the coming election the club will be well officered. "Dad" Center and his men should be given carte blanche and instructions to bring the club back to its old place as the leader of aquatic sports during the summer months.
