A. A. U. Rule Says Athlete Must Wait One Year Before Com- peting With Another Club

That Duke Kahanamoku cannot swim with any other club than the Hui Nalu in an inter-club competition before August, 1918, is the ruling of the local Amateur Athletic Association in interpreting the national ruling which requires that a man cannot compete with another club within a year after he resigns from the club with which he was formerly attached.

Duke's registration as a member of the Hui Nalu Club does not expire until next month and under the rules he will not be eligible to compete for the Outrigger team until within a year of that time. He can, however, compete unattached for a year.

The Outrigger Club has planned to use Kahanamoku on a team which they have been recently organizing. He has joined the club, but according to this ruling will be barred from their swimming team unless he violates the rules of the association.
