

VOLLEYBALL MATCH

LOST BY SIGNALERS

TO OUTRIGGER TEAM

A party of enlisted men of the Signal Corps motored to Waikiki Sunday morning to watch their team clash with one of the Outrigger Canoe Club in a game of volleyball. The beachcombers won in three straight games, but the match was by no means one-sided as the soldiers fought hard from beginning to end.

In each game the Signal Corps was leading in the beginning, but the Outriggerites always managed to score in the end enough points to win by a small margin. Tom Singlehurst of the soldiers, who learned the game on the Outrigger court, scored seven points in succession before his opponents could stop his placed serves. Charlie Lambert played a steady game and was the star for the visiting team.

Time and again Lambert handled difficult balls, which brought cheering from many fair rooters. Ross of the same team took a number of chances and made good. Bowers played well at times, but quite often he was slow in returning the ball. With practise and a little more teamwork the Signal Corps should have a real formidable team to be reckoned with in the near future.

"Mouse" Smith of the Outrigger in his rainbow-colored bathing suit played a stellar game and he certainly divided honors with "Dad" Center, the old warhorse of the O. C. C. "Dad's" play is never spectacular, but his team can depend on him at all times and, besides, "Dad" uses his head. Major Britton also played a good, steady game. Young Lindsay was the surprise of the day. He played like a veteran and with a bit more coaching and more practise should make a star player.

Both teams touched the net quite often, which lost at least one game for the soldiers. The score was as follows: 15-12; 15-13 and 15-12.

Lineup: Signal Corps—Singlehurst, Ross, Bowers, Shepard, Gromer, Lambert (captain); Outrigger Canoe Club—Britton, Dease, Smith, Dickson, Lindsay, Johnson, Center (captain).
