

Volleyball Battles To Be Fought On Beach At Waikiki

Signal Corps and Outrigger Canoe Club Teams To Meet In Second Row

The Signal Corps, U. S. A., volleyball team will take the Outrigger Canoe Club outfit to task at two-thirty tomorrow afternoon on the court of the latter, hard-by the sea on the beach at Waikiki.

Last Sunday's match, lost to the signallers, was not satisfactory to the Signal Corps crack crew, as the umpire had just come in from a rough surf-board ride and had too much sand and salt water in his eyes to do justice to the game, which he umpired from somewhere on the roof of the pavilion. He figured that in this match Greek was meeting Greek and his vantage point added safety to his strenuous official labors.

This time, it was announced by "Dad" Center, although he wishes his identity to remain a secret, there will be on hand an umpire who will see the fouls coming and going, so that the rival teams will have no kick coming.

The Gang's To Be There

Charles Lambert Jr., F. Bowers and T. Singlehurst, who are with the Signal Corps now, learned the game on the beach-combers lot and will be on hand this afternoon to hook them down on "Mouse" Smith and twist them around "Skyscraper" Johnson, while "Got-Get'em" Major Britton will be there, as he always is, dropping them into the holes excavated by Bowers' generous pedal propellers.

It will be a hot game from start to finish, even if the kiawe trees are shady and the sea wafts ashore a gentle zephyr. The Signal Corps boys have put in a hot week practising for tomorrow's scrap.
