

YALE STAR WILL NOT PLAY ON GRID HERE

Honolulu football fans who had been looking forward to the coming football season in hopes of seeing Carter Galt, famous Yale star, in action on the local gridiron will be disappointed. Galt has announced that he will not be in the ranks this year.

Instead of donning the pads and helmet he plans to assist in the coaching of the Palama team. In this he will assist Ben Clarke, who is the chief coach.

Originally Carter was to have played on the Outrigger Canoe club team and Herman von Holt was also planning to return to the game to strengthen the surfriders' team.

Galt made a great name for himself last year on the Yale team, and while he was not on Walter Camp's first All-American selection, a number of the New York newspapers included him on the first team.
