

OUTRIGGERS WANT TO PLAY WAIKIKIS AGAIN

The Outrigger Canoe club football team, which lost a hard-fought battle to the Waikikis last Sunday afternoon at Moiliili field by a score of 14 to 7, is anxious to play the Waikikis again. What is more, the Waikikis are willing to play any time after New Year's Day.

The Outriggers would like to play the game before New Year's Day and have suggested Christmas morning, but this had been declined by the Waikikis on the ground that it would be taking chances of getting the beachcombers damaged before New Year's Day game. It is generally conceded that the Waikikis will play the University of Nevada on New Year's Day.

There was a report going the rounds that Carter Galt of Yale had stated that he would play with the team that got the honor of tackling Nevada on New Year's Day, but there does not appear to be any ground for this. As it stands, Galt would probably have a hard job getting in shape in time for the game and the Waikikis have a strong enough line without him, declare Waikiki backers.
