

Use Mack Truck For Football Team

To make a football game possible two teams must be on the field, and a sure means of getting them there on time must be provided. Two weeks ago Fred Bailey, manager of the Outrigger Canoe club football squad hired a truck to transport the Outrigger team from the Outrigger Canoe club to Moiliili field where the big game with the Waikiki Athletic club was to take place.

Bailey had allowed 15 minutes for the trip, but the truck that he had procured took much longer than this because of a breakdown on the way. This helped to make the players more nervous than they naturally were before the contest, and almost delayed the start of the game.

After the battle the players, all in, very dirty, and longing for a bath, piled into the truck expecting to be back at the beach and under the showers in a few minutes. But the engine wouldn't "percolate," and after cranking, cranking, cranking for an hour or so the weary warriors one by one, drifted out to the beach by "bumming" carfare, and rides from friends they met along the way. Some of them did not get home until long after dinner time and their spirits weren't particularly joyful.

The week following Bailey made up his mind to provide a certain and sure means of transportation that would get the boys there and back, so he decided upon a Mack truck, which was loaned by the Pond Company, Ltd. The big truck was at the Outrigger on time Saturday afternoon, took the team, substitutes, water boys, coaches, manager and followers, about 40 in all, out to the game, made its way through the big gate, provided a sort of headquarters for the Outrigger team during the game, and when the contest was over took them back to the club in time for a swim before dinner.

VIOLET RAY VISORS COMING FOR SCHUMAN

The latest rage in automobile accessories is the visor for a car's windshield and the accessory department of the Schuman Carriage Co. reported the arrival of a cargo of visors this week.

While most of the visors made by other firms are green, the visor handled by the Merchant street house is blue or, to be technically correct, violet ray color. It is made by the Sunspot plant.
