

OUTRIGGER CLUB GIVES PRELIMINARY CHOWDER AT BEACH

There was a chowder at the Outrigger Club last night to the directors and the entertainment committee and invited guests. It was a sample of what the big chowder next month is to be. General Macomb moved that it was the best chowder he had ever tasted, and the motion was unanimously carried with the fourth bowl, and Francis J. Green, who read a poem on the Outrigger Club, was commanded to write a sonnet to the chef.

The chowder was a big success in every way and it was voted to invite the ladies to the next one and ask their advice as to the big entertainment to which they have already promised their co-operation. Every member of the club will now be canvassed to underwrite the tickets for the big entertainment. So far 300 tickets at a dollar each have been subscribed and the exact date will be set when a thousand tickets have been underwritten. The committee, while the chowder was heating, went over the grounds and outlined the improvements to be made before the entertainment comes off. The big dancing lanai will be completed and rethatched in advance, the stone retaining wall completed and a part of the lagoon filled in. The entire hau tree grove will be cement floored as a canoe shed and a restaurant lanai for the members of the club and their friends.

Each of the entertainment committee has a list of club members he is to call on and secure the underwriting of the tickets. The entertainment will last from two in the afternoon until midnight. In the afternoon there will be all kinds of canoeing and surfing events and the Clark cups will be contested for if this does not interfere with entries for the regattas, in which case the cup contests will have to be postponed, as the entertainment is for the club. From five to seven the chowder will be served under the hau tree grove and from seven until midnight there will be a dance in the big lanai; it is possible that there will be a young folks dance after the races until eight o'clock. The tickets for the entire day, races, chowder and dance, will be a dollar.
