

AUXILIARY AND OUTRIGGER TO UNITE FORCES

Two swimming organizations of Honolulu have joined hands and will place their forces together for an attack on the other clubs. The Outrigger Club and Women's Auxiliary have united and the swimmers of these two organizations will compete for the Outrigger Club in the future.

"Dad" Center, who is the leading figure in swimming at the club, is going after some honors this year. He placed the club in the limelight last season, and with the girl swimmers from the auxiliary should produce some excellent stars.

Now that Harold Castle is at the head of the Hui Nalus and J. Brooks Brown has taken charge of athletics at Palama Settlement, there should be some real interest in swimming. A lot of the dead timber has been cut out and if the real boosters for aquatics will be given their way, the prospects are bright for a successful season, despite the war.
