Saturday evening on the Bethel street alleys the Chinese Demon Duo, Ching and Pong, disputed the rights! of "Doc" Slater and Truesdell to the Houbles championship of the Pacific They made things very interesting for six games, until Ching developed a "Charley horse" in his arm and Slater and Truesdell won the match by 65 pins, they also taking seven of the 10 games.

Numerous splits but few "blows" featured the match. High single score went to Truesdell with 235 and he tlso had high average with 2047. The bowling of Ching and Pong was up to their usual, consistent form and Slater was decidedly "off", and had it not been for the almost phenomenal bowling of Truesdell during the first six games the Chinese boys would undoubtedly have won the match.

It is rumored that the next pair to tackle Slater and Truesdell will be Camara and Pong, and an interesting match is anticipated by the fans.
