

University Boys Save Drowning Sailor At Beach

A bluejacket from one of the visiting warships was seized with cramps while bathing at Waikiki Beach yesterday afternoon off the Outrigger Club, and was brought ashore safely, after calling for help, by Murray Hemminger and Wilson Jacobsen, young members of the club, who are also students of the University of Hawaii. The boys were on shore when the calls were heard. They plunged into the ocean and swam out to the sailor who was about to sink.
