

PUNAHOU IS TAKING ON HEFTY ONES IN PRACTICE

Punahou's football squad has the right idea in training. Part of that aggregation's daily work is a scrimmage with the Outrigger eleven at Alexander field. The result is that Pun, after having tussled each day with a team that outweighs it on the hoof and outages it in the playing years of the team, will be in a position to more than hold its own, so the coaches think, with any aggregation in the Inter-scholastic League.

Although the loss of McGuire, through injury, has been more or less of a handicap to the team, and other minor injuries have slowed up the work, it is believed that the Alexander field prodigies will snap into it in fine style on the occasion of their first game with St. Louis on October 30.

McGuire is expected to play again during the latter part of the season, and still helps out with advice from the sidelines, in spite of the arm that he carries in a plaster cast.
