

AUSTRALIANS DUE ON WEDNESDAY

OUTRIGGER RECEPTION TOMORROW

The Australian swimming team which took part in the Olympic games at Antwerp is scheduled to be in Honolulu Wednesday on its way home. The steamer Niagara is bringing the Australians. The Hawaiian A. A. U. will probably meet Tuesday night to decide on a reception of some kind for the visitors.

The Outrigger Canoe club's entertainment and reception to the Hawaiian swimming team, recently returned from the Olympic games, will be staged tomorrow night at the club pavilion. All the athletic clubs of the city have been invited. There will be speeches of welcome by President Warren Dease and Vice President Dan E. Mooney as well as accounts of the trip by George ("Dad") Center, manager of the team, and Duke P. Kahanamoku, star of the outfit. Following the dance will be refreshments.

It has been suggested that W. W. ("Wild Bill") Harris, Jr., member of the Hawaiian team, be called upon at the Outrigger Canoe club reception tomorrow night to tell of the "Pake Relay," the comedy event of the Hawaiian swimming team, which sent thousands into laughter in Chicago, San Francisco, Salt Lake City, New York, Antwerp and Paris. Bill's description of the race is said to be even more funny than the race itself.

Warren and Pua Kealoha took no chances in the big town of New York. One day while the team was there "Dad" Center warned the two to be careful of pickpockets, slugs, highwaymen and other kinds of trouble. The two went out for a short walk. Bill Harris and Center had business at the A. A. U. office and while returning noticed the two Kealohas looking into the windows of a store. Walking up quietly behind them, light-steppers reached over and touched the hip pockets of the two youngsters. Neither of them turned around but they knew something was wrong and started up the street at a hurried pace. Center and Harris followed them and caught up and again impersonated pickpockets. The two Kealohas increased their pace until it was nearly a dog trot and still they did not turn around, fearful of the "murderous" pickpockets. But Harris was almost bursting with laughter and when the second flight occurred he could contain himself no longer. The laugh made the Kealohas turn around. Both were white as ghosts as if they had seen spirits and both heaped their indignation on the two jokesters.
