

First Swim Race Tonight Should See New Record

Swimming fans who attend the December tank meet tonight at the Y. M. C. A. should make it a point to be on hand early for the first race of the evening will be the 100 yards men's open in which Duke Kahanamoku, world champion sprint star, will attempt to break his own tank record for the distance. The present best time for the 100 yards in the "Y" tank is :55.4, made by Duke last December, and at the rate the champion is now traveling he should have no trouble in lowering this mark.

Another event tonight which should draw considerable attention is the 50 yard men's backstroke. Last April, Warren Kealoha, now world champion backstroke star broke the world tank record for this event by covering the distance in :29.5. He is expected to do better than that tonight when he enters this event.

The men's plunge for distance is also scheduled tonight. W. W. Harris, Jr., is the holder of the present record having made the 60 feet in 35 seconds last December.

Relay

The girls' relay race will also be a thrilling number. The Outrigger girls won in April and made a record time of 1:42.1 for 160 yards, thus breaking their own record of 1:43.3 made in February, 1920. The Outrigger Canoe club will have two relay teams in the girls' race with the stars split up.

There will be three Olympic stars: Ludy Langer, Pua Kealoha and Warren Kealoha in the 440 yards men's open event tonight and some of the dopesters are picking Warren to win.

The best time ever made in the "Y" tank for distance was registered by Norman Ross last December when he covered the distance in 5:05.3, breaking his own tank record of 5:08.4 made in the Illinois Athletic club tank.

The biggest crowd is expected tonight because of the century event and the fact that Duke is going to try for a new record. Furthermore, it being Saturday night, a great many who were unable to attend last night will be on hand.
