

BOULDIN BURBANK IS AT HARVARD

Bouldin Burbank, one of the crack divers of the Outrigger Canoe Club, but now of Harvard university, Cambridge, Mass., is making a reputation for himself as an athlete. He writes to one of his friends that last week he won the pole vault in a track meet and that he made a name for himself, and that consequently he has won more friends. He said he was the only freshman to win an event and that athletics surely make friends for a student at Harvard.

Bouldin Burbank is doing exceptionally well in all his lessons, and is making good at Cambridge.