

season, and the wise promoters realize that they cannot hope to stage a fight show every week in competition to football. Ring shows are being staged on the other islands as usual. There was one on Maui Saturday night, which makes it look as though someone had his fingers crossed when there was talk of suspending all boxing operations in the territory.

Since the petition was drawn up, it has been shown that some of the items mentioned are already in the books. There is one of the petitioned items that will probably never be granted—and that is the one about posting certain bonds and certified checks. That is a protection every fighter and manager should insist on being continued.

Make Reports

J. R. Farrington, retiring president, gave the first annual report, that of the president, and declared that the Hawaiian Association of the A. A. U. had enjoyed a most successful year. He gave as two of the reasons a better understanding of the aims and ideals of the A. A. U. on the part of the general public and the competing athletes, and the good work of E. T. Chase, as assistant treasurer, in handling the finances of the organization.

Mr. Chase's report showed that at the end of the fiscal year, ending September 1, 1933, the association had funds on hand totaling $2,730.67. Of this amount $2,039.43 was the amount of profit turned into the A. A. U. treasurer by the boxing committee to be placed in a special fund and held for further development of amateur boxing during the 1933-34 season.

The boxing committee filed a complete report on its activities, including a financial report with vouchers attached which drew complimentary comment from Assistant Treasurer Chase, who audited the report.

A budget system based on estimated receipts and expenditures was presented by Assistant Treasurer Chase and was adopted by the association.

Dr. Hugh M. Parshall, of Urbana, O., famous driver of trotters and pacers, took only 18 of his stable of 35 on the trip around the east end of the Grand Circuit this year.

Bobby Poser, former University of Wisconsin basketball and baseball star, has been batting well over .450 for the Madison, Wis., team of the Illinois-Wisconsin league.
