Drive To Save Outrigger Canoe Club

The commendable efforts that are being made to save the Outrigger Canoe club are meeting with moderate success, but it is by no means certain that Honolulu will not see the passing of this distinctive and world-famous institution. It is imperatively necessary that several hundred new members be enrolled almost immediately if the grave financial situation in which the club finds itself is to be met. As matters now stand it cannot be carried on.

The call for proper civic spirit is unmistakable. It would amount to a community loss if, after twenty-five years of successful effort which has contributed greatly to the fame and attractiveness of the city, the Outrigger club were allowed to die. The present campaign to recruit new members merits the backing of every public-minded citizen.

This is the time for loyal shoulders at the wheel.
