

GIRL CREWS LEAVE TODAY FOR REGATTA AT KONA SATURDAY

EVERYTHING is in readiness for the big Kona canoe races Saturday morning on Kealahou Bay. The two local girl crews will leave for the scene of the races on the Humuula this morning at 10 o'clock.

EASIEST TO READ

WATCH FOR IT

The men crews have been in Hawaii waters since Tuesday.

Eight from the Outrigger and a similar number from the Hui Nalu will comprise the girls' delegation leaving today. This includes seven paddlers and a chaperone from each club. The girls are making the trip as the guests of George II Brown.

According to reports from Kona, all crews engaged in time trials yesterday. The same routine will be followed today after which all crews will coast until the races start at 9 o'clock Saturday morning.

The Outrigger Canoe Club has been established an early favorite to carry off the regatta laurels. However, anyone offering the field against the Dad Center-coached youngsters found many takers yesterday.

This department learned on good authority yesterday that Coach Willie Whittle would steer for the Queen's Surfriders in two of the major races Saturday. As a result, the Queen's Surfers have been established as the "Dark Horses."

Honoluluans expecting to witness the races are advised to get their reservations immediately for the Wai-aleale excursion. The boat leaves at 7:30 Friday night.