Surf Riding

FROM a little grass shack with one outrigger canoe some twenty-five years ago, to the present palm-thatched canoe-shed housing some twenty canoes, the Outrigger Canoe club has become a center of surf-riding, outrigger canoeing and swimming activities on the far-famed beach at Waikiki.

Hawaii and the world have come to accept that surf-riding is traditional of these shores, and everyone of the thousands who have come and who will come to Hawaii, knows that here he will see, at last, the famed surf-riders sweeping magnificently on the crest of the foaming rollers at Waikiki.

SAVED SPORT

It is not generally known, however, that a quarter of a century ago, when surf-riding was about to become a lost art, that a group of loyal and enthusiastic Honolulu boys resolved that surf-riding should not die out, and organized the Outrigger Canoe Club to systematically sustain this real sport of ancient Hawaii.

The recent influx of new blood into the Club has given added impetus to a sport that has grown by leaps and bounds during its life of the Outrigger Canoe Club.

Among the many unique facilities of the Club are, of course, the outrigger canoes, available at all times to members, and captained by the most skillful steersmen in the world, Duke Kahalo-moku, Dad Center, Toots Mavielle, Gay Harris and Typhoon Spencer to name only a few.

NEW CANOES

Recent additions to the Club's outrigger canoe fleet are two small canoes secured in Kona by Dad Center, and in accordance with the policy of encouraging the younger generation, these canoes are reserved for members under sixteen.

The Princess Kawananakoa has recently signified her interest in encouraging the girl crews, which have been so successful in the Kona races, by giving them a racing canoe for their exclusive use.

In addition to the hundreds of privately owned surfboards, the Club now maintains, as part of its equipment, some twenty surfboards, designed for use of every member of the family with particular emphasis on the youngsters.

A new surf-riding, outrigger canoeing and swimming instruction service, designed primarily for inexperienced members, has recently been installed under the direction of Joe Minor and Typhoon Spencer at a nominal fee for members and at regular beach rates for non-members.

FINE ACCOMMODATIONS

Locker rooms, showers, free laundry service for towels and suits, surfboard lockers, volleyball courts, a large kitchen with all modern appurtenances for the preparation of picnic suppers to be eaten on the beautiful lawn are some of the contributing factors to the Outrigger Canoe Club's popularity and longevity.

The Club's future appears bright, for so long as Waikiki's
