

THOMAS SEDGWICK IN SEATTLE POSITION

Appointed as the chief instructor of the public swimming pools in the city of Seattle, Thomas Sedgwick, a former resident of Honolulu, is another island man who is advancing rapidly on the mainland.

Mr. Sedgwick was taught to swim by "Dad" Center of the Outrigger Canoe club and the Punahou academy, and after leaving here to attend the University of Washington, made a name for himself on becoming a member of the varsity swimming team of that institution.

Sedgwick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Sedgwick of this city.
