

Kona Paddlers Busy Training

Outrigger Classic to Be Staged in Kailua Bay

(Special to The Advertiser)

HILO, July 19—While the three Honolulu organizations—Hui Nalu, Outrigger Canoe Club and Queen's Surf—are busily engaged in testing out their prospects for the various crews and thinking of their test regatta August 4 in Honolulu Harbor, the Kona paddlers have been busily engaged for four weeks in training quietly to defend their laurels and to retain Big Island supremacy in every form of rowing.

With the big outrigger canoe races in Kona—the biggest event of the year in the westside—a little over a month away, the oarsmen are in the thick of their training grind while civic leaders and others are laying plans for taking care of the races and preparing for the big throng which each year comes from Honolulu and all over the island to the races.

NEW SITE

Plans this year call for the biggest event staged thus far. It is the third annual celebration in the district. In 1933 and 1934 it was staged at Kealakekua bay. This year the site has been switched to Kailua bay.

With more room for the spectators, who will be located at a point looking out into the bay with the entire course of the races in full view directly before them, conditions are expected to be better than the past two years at Kealakekua bay.

The races will be staged right in front of the important town of Kailua and merchants are hopefully looking forward to a gala occasion and a rushing business for at least a few days.

JULIAN'S BUSY

One sign of start of activities for the paddlers was the moving of Julian R. Yates, westside supervisor and civic leader, to his beach home at Napoopoo, to be with the boys as they are training.

Julian, a political, civic and sports leader for Kona, at present is being kept extremely busy both in watching the boys of his own and getting them out to train each afternoon on weekdays and on Sunday mornings, as well as carrying on his other work and making preparations with others on the committee for the regatta in general.

Earlier in the month some of the Kona people were complaining that there seems to be a grow-

prizes."

The following is the list of winners of the European trip:

Miss E. Cuming, Saskatchewan, Canada; Anna Bell Costin, Wichita, Kansas; Henry B. Jons, Daniel, Wyo.; Helen C. Sunday, Washington, D.C.; Gladys Aileen Vote, Denver, Colo.; Mrs. J. Campbell James, Grand Canyon, Ariz.; W. N. Neff, Lincoln, Nebr.; Mrs. O. C. Lawrence, Benton Harbor, Mich.; Miss Florence Johnson, Galesburg, Ill.; Katherine MacLeod, Swarthmore, Pa.; Blanche M. Viault, Pawtucket, Rhode Island; Mrs. F. P. Field, No. Hollywood, Calif.; Frederick M. Gregory, Woodmont, Conn.; Georgina Lockwood Waddell, Raspeburg, Md.; W. Hume Logan, Jr., Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. Alice Beauchamp, Twin Falls, Ida.; Jas. F. Dean, Shreveport, Lora McAdoo, Memphis, Tenn.; Geo. W. Smith, White River Jct., Vt.; Mae L. Stoner (Mrs.), Bronx, N. Y.

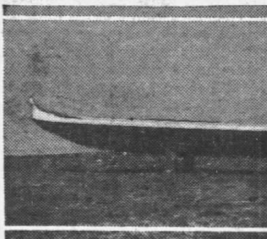

The Judges in the contest were Emil Rohde, president National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists' association; Mrs. Winifred Fayant, president American Cosmeticians' association, and Miss Elizabeth Woodward, associate editor of Ladies' Home Journal.

"AT REST" ON CASKET DECRIED

PUEBLO, Co. (U.P.)—An unemployed man sauntered into a mortuary. He gazed at a high-priced casket with the words "at rest" inscribed on it. He turned to the undertaker. "Don't put those words on my casket," he directed. "I've been out of work so long that I'm all rested up."

ing scarcity of good, large koa logs fit to be made into good racing outrigger canoes. However, a few were located to be built into boats 32, 33 and 36 feet in length.

Stream-Line

SHE'LL CUT THE WAVES
victory in the Kona canoe regatta the inter-island classic, to be held are unsurpassed by those of any