

Canoe Enthusiasts To Meet Today On Plans For Regatta

(Continued from Page 1)

program, little will be known as to the respective ability of the rival paddlers.

Outrigger's senior crew is said to be even more powerful than the big sixes which have been turned out in the past by Coach "Dad" Center and the Hui Nalu boat is also being touted as a possible favorite in the big blue ribbon event of the day. Queen's Surfers are saying little and the lineup of their crews is being withheld by Charlie Amalu, who promises a surprise or two when the club's paddlers take on their old-time rivals.

NEW CANOE COMING

Of interest in the Queen's Surf camp is the expected arrival Thursday of their new canoe from the Kona Coast. This trim craft, newly fashioned by Kona's best boat builders, is being loaned to the Queen's paddlers by Julian Yates of Honaunau's crews. The new boat will arrive Thursday morning and launching ceremonies will be staged that afternoon off Ala Moana Park.

The Queen's Surfers will undoubtedly forge further into the fight for the blue ribbons as a result of the acquisition of this new boat and Hui Nalu and Outrigger are viewing the competition for this end of the beach with considerable alarm.

Members of the committee and crew officials are asked to be at the Outrigger club today at noon. After this assembly final plans for Sunday's races will be announced.