never headed. They cinched the trip to Kealakekua.

The junior six event went to the Queen's Surfers after a close race with the Hui Nalu and Outrigger crews. Hui Nalu challenged the leaders at the turn but the boys from the Waikiki Inn held their own and swept across the finish line the winners.

The Hui Nalu was second and the Beach Patrol third. The winning time was 12 minutes 9 seconds.

Another Good Race

The senior two man event was won by the Hui Nalu crew, composed of Sam Kahanamoku and Johnny Wise after a real battle with the Outrigger team. The Beach Patrol crew, composed of Led Brodei and Buddy Wedemere, who were participating in their third race of the day, made a bid for honors at the outset but as the pace grew hotter they coasted and were content to nose out the Queen's Surfers for third place.

It was only by a last desperate pull that the Nalu team won. The spectators were all expecting another tie to be announced but a great cheer went up as the announcer boomed out that the Nalu team had won by inches. The winning time was 6 minutes 32 seconds.

The senior four, the last event on the program, was copped by the Outrigger bunch after a thrilling WELLINGTON, New Zealand. (AP).—Anglers here prefer platinum blondes.

The reason is that their hair, used in the tying of artificial flies, is said to have a devastating attraction for fish.

Fish, it is maintained, have an eye also for flies tied with an uncommon shade of red-gold hair.

fight with the Nalu boys. Queen's Surfers were third.

The Outrigger won this race by less than a boat length. The time was 13 minutes 15 seconds. •

The races were creditably handled by Duke Kahanamoku, who kept speeding the boys up between races. A crowd of nearly 2,000 witnessed the races from various points of vantage.

Yesterday's events forecast splendid races for the fans at Kailua, Kona, when the local boys journey to Kealakekua bay during the latter part of this month.
