paddle seniors; 5, six-paddle juniors; 6, six-paddle girls; 7, four-paddle seniors; 8, six-paddle consolation race.

The rowing clubs are pointing for the senior race, blue ribbon event of the morning's competition, but the paddlers are each working to make a good showing in his own boat.

Closing up the morning program will be the consolation race, which is for all the substitutes who are present but who do not have the opportunity to row in the other events.

If there are not enough subs to fill the boat, a few more who had raced may be selected to make up the complete crew. The Honau-nau bunch has five subs thus far. These who will enter the consolation event are F. Apoliana, L. Kaio, A. Koko, A. Kahili, and J. Hua, Jr. However, some of these boys may break their way into some other race and replace some who are now listed as regulars.

2 OFFICIALS NAMED

Oswald A. Hind of Kona will be starter and Duke P. Kahanamoku from Honolulu is to be judge of the course.

The morning of August 24 will be a colorful day in Kailua bay, with boats gathering in the harbor, large numbers of brawny, bronzed young men clad only in shorts waiting for the different races, and sports fans present from all parts of the Big Island and from Honolulu.

The outlook is for a gala day, but Yates was dissatisfied as he looked ahead. The trouble, it seems to him, is that the eight events on the program are not enough. There is only one race for girls and he wants to get all his lassies, 14 in number, taking part.

In addition to his regular crew, there are others available. He reported that a second crew may be entered under the name of Napoopoo, or they may come in under the colors of the Japanese club.

The spare girls' crew will include May Hua, Mary Yates, Evelyn Yates, Sophie Waialeale, Carry Iwanaga, and Mary Kekuwa, likely lining up in that order.

Also there are two girls' subs, Ida Hoomanawanui and Hilda Harbottle.
