The famous Princess canoe made the water again this year with a panini crew under the guidance of Dad Center. The training canoes are getting in workouts for the big Kamehameha Day races. On Kamehameha Day, June 11, the Hawaiians will have their banner celebration of the year with canoe races topping off the day's delights.

Julian Yates, Kona impresario and able trainer, has been sending some brand new canoes to Oahu for the use of local crews. Two new boats arrived last week and the University of Hawaii is getting two more. Since canoe racing came into its own the old Hawaiian art of canoe making has again been revived.
