It will not be all work and no play for canoe paddlers of the other islands when they come to Honolulu for the big races in Honolulu harbor on Kamehameha Day. A regatta dance is planned at the Outrigger club pavilion, and there will be a great big luau. Everywhere the welcome sign will be out. Honolulu's hospitality will be extended in all its friendly generosity. Kamehameha Day is going to be a day worth remembering, if Eben P. Low, Charles Amalu and others preparing the program have their plans adopted. Not only will all visitors be treated to a roaring holiday, but local residents are going to know they have been in the midst of some big doings.
