Thousands Will March In Kam Jubilee Parade

(This is the first of three articles describing the jubilee cele-bration to be held here on June 11. Subsequent articles will describe the water pageant in the evening and the inter-island canoe regatta in the afternoon.)

A colorful glimpse of how Hawaii celebrated Kamehameha Day during the monarchy will be an important part of the parade on the morning of June 11 for the bicentennial of King Kamehameha I and the centennial of King Kalakaua. Eben Low, executive secretary of the jubilee commission, promises that the parade of several thousand persons will be the largest of its Horse racing, pau riders and horse drawn floats were an essential part of an old time Kamehameha Day. Racing will be represented by a section of the parade.

Cowboy Singers

First will come two pinto Shetland ponies. A span of two Shet-land ponies will pull a little phae-ton buggy driven by Robert Hind's grandchildren. Next will come a gang of cowboy singers supposedly riding to the race track in a horse drawn wagon.

the old Kapiolani park race track, will drive an old fashioned sulky with high wheels. Clarence Mac-Farlane, old time turf enthusiast, is expected to follow in a racing sulky. Gayly clothed jockeys will ride two race horses.

More than 100 Hawaiians will ride horses in the parade. Their skirts nearly reaching the ground, 55 pau riders will ride with English saddles which have no pummels. Capes will cover the girls' shoulders. Their hair will be decorated by leis. They will wear the colors of their islands.

Princess Liliuokalani

Princess at large among the riders will be Princess Liliuokalani, daughter of Princess Kawananakoa. who will have seven female attendants and several male aides riding with her. There will be 24 prin-cesses, three for each of the eight islands, and 24 maids of honor likewise

Wearing white shirts and trousers, 40 men riders will have neckties and sashes of the color of their islands. They will wear Panama hats. Each island will send two aides, two outriders and one page.

In addition a grand marshal, yet unnamed, and four assistant mar-shals will ride. The latter will be William Rathburn, Arthur Freitas, William Bell and Bruce Hopkins.

Floats of Entertainers
Preceding each princess will be a float of entertainers from her is-land. All the other islands are sending troupes of more than 60 singers. Not all of any troupe will be able to ride the float.

Just as in the old days, Maui's one float will be drawn by four or six white horses, to be sent here from Maui by Harry A. Baldwin. The floats for Kauai and Kahoolawe will be drawn by sleek black mules, supplied by the army. Other floats will be motor propelled. The girl singers on the floats will wear holokus of the color of their islands. Civic organizations and plantations will enter from 15 to 20 floats depicting Hawaiian historical scenes. The Outrigger Canoe club and the Walkiki Beach association will enter two or three floats showing surf riding with real boards and canoes.
