its members to work out an arrangement for remaining on the beach.

The Hui Nalu's membership consists largely of Hawaiians.

Mr. Macfarlane said that a letter has been sent to these members, reaffirming the "friendly neighbor" relationship between the clubs, and extending them the hospitality and facilities of the Outrigger Canoe Club.

If the Hui Nalu cannot find other beach accommodation, Mr. Macfarlane said, provision will be made for it on the Outrigger property, which is to be the scene of a $100,000 building project this year.

Hui Nalu, however, would retain its separate identity, even if it occupies space on the Outrigger property, Mr. Macfarlane made it clear.
