

Outrigger Club Meets Today

With three weeks remaining before the deadline for the Outrigger Canoe club's campaign the membership has been asked to attend a meeting at 4:15 p. m. today at the chamber of commerce to discuss the windup of the club's bond-selling campaign.

Members will also be informed of a change in the financing plan for the club, Walter Macfarlane, president, said yesterday. Originally, plans for the new buildings on the leasehold at Waikiki called for a bond issue of $90,000 and a total expenditure of more than $100,000. However, short cuts in the construction may now hold the total cost under $70,000. Basic design will not be altered, nor facilities lessened, Mr. Macfarlane said.
