

Waikiki Grows

Destined for the very near future to become a self-sufficient suburb of Honolulu, the Waikiki district today is a scene of busy construction activity. . Already housing a fair number of stores and shops, work is under way on still more buildings, while others are yet in the process of planning.

Beside the Earl Thacker building which is to rise opposite the Moana Hotel and the new Outrigger Club building under construction ewa of the hotel, there are a number of units of shop buildings completed in the vicinity of Lewers Road and others are under construction in the same vicinity. Rumors have it, too, that a new bank building is planned for Waikiki. Along the Ala Wai, considerable residential construction work has been started.
