

Pearl Stone Is Crowned Miss Waikiki

Captures Honors In Kamehameha Day Program At Beach

Miss Pearl Lani Stone was crowned "Miss Waikiki" yesterday during the program of canoe and surfboard races held at the beach as part of the Kamehameha Day celebration. The program was sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Miss Stone, who is employed by the American Red Cross, Hawaii Chapter, was sponsored by Kodak Hawaii. She won the title of Miss Waikiki in competition with 17 other beautiful girls. Miss Dorothy Day was second and Miss Lei Becker third in the exciting contest.

The Queen of the celebration, Miss Stone, wore a yellow Catalina swim suit and was bedecked with a 24 strand pikake lei and a pikake crown. She received the Princess Kaiulani trophy.

Smith Wins Twice

Gene Smith, champion surfboard paddler, won two of the big surfing races. He placed first in the triangular surfboard paddle with Al Kekai and David Kalukiolani coming in second and third. Smith also placed first in the surfboard sprint open competition, with Joe Pang second and David Kalukiolani third. The open surfing and tandem races were cancelled because the surf was unsatisfactory.

The open canoe race for the Kalakaua award was won by the Outrigger Canoe Club with Hui Nalu placing second.

The junior canoe race was won by the Beach Patrol.

Royal Crew First

A navy crew from the Royal Hawaiian won the service men's canoe race in which three crews participated.

Al Kekai and Joan Kahanamoku placed first in the tandem surfboard race, with Hema Louis and July Kaa second and Edward Whaley and Norene Arnold third.

Awards and trophies were donated by Waikiki and Honolulu firms. W. Alan Graves, president of the junior chamber, presided. F. Gordon Chadwick, well known local artist, was chief judge of the Miss Waikiki contest.
