

NOT IN THE SPIRIT OF SPORTSMANSHIP

We can not believe that the membership of the Outrigger Club will sanction continuance of a policy of racial discrimination.

The club was founded not only on good sports and good sportsmanship but on the ideals of racial mingling and harmony. That was a firm and zealous principle of the late Alexander Hume Ford, and of others who created the beach organization.

Now that the club's "unwritten law" has been revealed by a needless and embarrassing incident—the barring of a luncheon guest—it is to be hoped that there's enough of Hawaii's aloha spirit remaining to cause the membership of the club to drop the "unwritten law" and show that good sportsmanship exists in the clubhouse as well as on the beach or in the surf.

We of Hawaii rise in indignation at discrimination against non-Caucasians on the mainland.

We can not remain silent when similar discrimination is permitted here.
