

Canoes Anchored After High Waves

The Outrigger Canoe club had its canoes anchored down Saturday night due to high waves which were entering the canoe shed, which is located under the club.

The unusual high tide has subsided but the canoes are still anchored, guarding against any future high waves which are customary at this time of the year.

No damage was done to the canoes.
