

Outrigger Club May Compete

Honolulu oarsmen are intensifying preparations for the Thanksgiving Day regatta races on the Ala Wai and there is a possibility that a new club will participate.

This is the Outrigger Canoe club which presently is seeking to borrow a barge with which to train and compete.

It was announced that five races will be presented November 28, a week from today. These are the novice, freshmen, junior, intermediate and senior events.

Clubs competing will represent the Honolulu Rowing club, the Healanis and Honolulu Firemen.

Thomas Silva, coach of the firemen crews, has requested that all his rowers report for serious practice beginning at 5 this afternoon at the Ala Wai boathouse.

While the Thanksgiving Day races will not be a championship meet they will serve to maintain interest in the sport, officials of the Hawaiian Rowing association hope.

Navy, which sprung a surprise by winning the senior event in September, is not competing in the meet.
