

Challenge Hurled

Outrigger Boasts Of 'Toughest Oldtimers'

By HARRY STROUP

The Outrigger Canoe Club claims to have the toughest aggregation of athletes over 45 years of age in the United States and an informal challenge has been issued by this group to meet any other similar aggregation in the following sports:

Volleyball, handball, swimming, surfboard paddling, bowling, canoe paddling and tennis.

"Most clubs concentrate on the training of the youngsters but the Outrigger is one place where those over 45 have a chance to get into shape and to stay that way," said Charles Amalu, spokesman for the "old men." "Duke Kahanamoku went to San Francisco with a handball team and while there he challenged the oldsters of the Olympic Club and the Los Angeles Athletic Club to meet the Outriggers gang in competition.

"Bob Chase is president of our group and although he is well over the half-century mark he is one of the best volleyball players in the islands.

"Duke, 54, a former Olympic swimming champion, is still able to compete with men many years his junior. He excels in swimming, surfing, canoeing and volleyball. His brothers David and Sam are still good swimmers and in competition although over 45 years of age.

"Others in this group are Sam Fuller, Dad Center, John D. Kaulpiko, Bill Hollinger, Joe Stickney,

A medal play championship for high school golfers will be held next Monday at the Ala Wai course.

Play will be for low gross honors (prep championship) as well as for prizes to the first three low net scores.

and Dr. Paul Withington.

"We are ready to meet any team of men over 45 years of age in any competitive sport. Our chief interest is to promote healthful recreation and good fellowship and to prove that you can still keep in physical trim and have a good time even though you get to be half a century old or more."
