

AFTER WANDERING through the Outrigger Canoe club over the holiday popular practice would have the old expression "everybody and his dog" changed to "everybody and his offspring."

Observing the volleyball games from their cribs under the coconut trees were the very young daughter of the Calvin Campbells and the equally young son of the George Cooks.

Evanita Midkiff was seen struggling with her baby daughter clad in diaper and bonnet. Maureen and Mark Buck, two of the Fred Buck's three, amused themselves by watching smaller children.
