Open-Water Swim Will Be Revived

The open-water Castle Swim competition, last held about two decades ago, will be revived this year by the Outrigger Canoe Club under the direction of A. E. Minvielle Jr.

The race, first held by the O.C.C. during World War I, has wooed the swimming prowess of such as Duke Kahanamoku, Buster Crabbe, Gay Harris, Mr. Minvielle himself, Sam Kahanamoku, Chester Sims and Carbis Walker, among many others.

The competition used to be held on Thanksgiving Day—and will be held on that day this year. It is known as the Castle Swim because the course begins at Castle Surf, off the former Castle home and now the Elks Club.

PLANS CALL for a men's race open to all and another for Outrigger Club members, beginning from outside the reef off the Elks Club.

Women's races—one for all comers and the other for O.C.C. members only—will be held from the Public Bath or Natatorium reef.

Races will end in front of the Outrigger.

It is intended that a boys' race and a girls' race will be held for O.C.C. members. But if there is enough non-club interest, there will be two more races open to all.

Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded first, second and third placers of the events.

It is planned to have as many canoes in the water as possible.
