

KLEBAHN GOES OUT WITH HEALANI CREW

Clubs Work Together for Regatta Ball—Water Carnival for Thanksgiving Day.

Coach Frederick William Klebahn, the veteran oarsman of past international fame, took the Healani crews out for inspection yesterday afternoon and made a few valuable suggestions in his usual modest way. Klebahn went out in Young Brothers' launch and steamed along with the oarsmen, megaphoning his suggestions as he put them through a series of spurts. He brought the senior crew up to the float after several exhibition spins, and then sent them away again on a fifteen-stroke dash under his scrutinizing gaze. Asked how they sized up to him, he said: "It's too late to make any radical changes now, with the races only a week off. I have been out of the rowing game for ten years. That's what my opinion is worth, and today is the first time I have seen the crews in training this year."

The veteran is going down again this morning to see how they do, and then Paul Jarrett is coming back from his honeymoon to finish them up. Bert Heilbron, stroke of the senior crew, said that Klebahn's drilling had brought about much improvement in their form. The crews of both clubs have timed themselves over the course, and while these records are kept secret, they announced yesterday that none of the trials yet had threatened the records of previous years.

While the spirit of rivalry simmers as between the crews who are working down to brass, each determined to pull it over the other for the strong arm supremacy of Honolulu bay, both the Myrtles and the Healanis are doing the stroke together for the grand finale in the spacious ballroom of the Young Hotel when victors and vanquished will be reconciled under the harmonious influences of the dance. The music will be furnished by Kaai's band of stringed instruments which will produce all the latest and choicest hits. Here the weatherbeaten heroes, who have been pulling themselves into shape for weeks under the broiling tropical sun, will come in for their reward in the way of sweet praises uttered from delicate feminine lips.

The ladies, of course, have free entry but their escorts will each be taxed a dollar to get in. Members of both clubs have a full stock of tickets and the music stores also have them on sale. The committee in charge of the regatta ball is made up of well known water sports who are members of both the Myrtle and Healani clubs. Bob Chillingworth, Will McTighe, Harry Bailey and Ed Schieber make up the Myrtle contingent and the Healanis are Harry O'Sullivan, James McSwanson and George Gall.

After the regatta day program is disposed of the Myrtles, Healanis and the Ontrigger Club boys are going to get busy on plans for a big water carnival which they expect to hold on next Thanksgiving Day.
