

REGATTA DAY ENDS IN DANCE

Big Crowd of Boatmen and Their Friends Throngs the Roof Garden.

Regatta Day wound up last night with a big ball at the Alexander Young Hotel roof garden, at which there were present not only most of the beauty and gallantry of Honolulu, but also nearly all of the heroes of the day, both victors and vanquished.

The dancing was in the makai pavilion, the makau pavilion not being utilized for that purpose. This made things pretty crowded on the dance floor, for there was a large crowd present.

No special attempt at decoration had been made, the pretty faces of the girls and their white and colored dresses being relied upon for the color effect.

An enthusiastic crowd of boatmen in one corner of the roof garden cheered their favorites incessantly. The contestants in the fat men's race seemed to get the most applause, there being continuous cheers for Frank Thompson, Princee Cupid, Charlie Chillingworth and Judge Robertson. All of these celebrities were present and blushed becomingly. Others, who had been out in the sun all day, wore a permanent blush—a blush that won't come off for several days.

The weather seemed a good deal cooler on the roof garden than in the street below, and this made dancing not only endurable, but enjoyable.
